Rationale

Pursuant to the Scheme of Arrangement amongst Reliance Jio Infocomm Limited (RJIL) and certain classes of its creditors (the "Scheme") as sanctioned by the Hon'ble National Company Law Tribunal, Ahmedabad Bench, vide its order dated March 13, 2020, Reliance Industries Limited (RIL) has assumed the NCDs (Rs. 17,000 crore) issued by RJIL.

The ratings favourably take into account the robust financial profile of the company reflected by healthy profitability, strong debt protection metrics, low working capital intensity and moderate leverage levels. The ratings also factor in the company's exceptional financial flexibility derived from its healthy liquid investment portfolio and superior fund-raising ability from the domestic and global banking as well as the capital markets. In FY2019, RIL completed certain large-scale expansions in the petrochemicals segment, including the refinery off-gas cracker and the petcoke gasification project in the refining segment. These projects are expected to generate healthy returns for RIL in the medium term. In FY2020, RIL announced signing of a non-binding agreement with Saudi Arabian Oil Company (Saudi Aramco) for sale of a 20% stake in RIL's Oil-to-Chemicals (O2C) business (i.e. the refining business, petrochemicals business, and RIL's 51% stake in the petroleum retail JV with BP Plc). The deal values RIL's O2C division at an Enterprise Value of US$ 75 billion which translates to an investment of US$ 15 billion from Saudi Aramco. The transaction is subject to due diligence, regulatory and other approvals. The conclusion of the transaction is expected to lead to significant deleveraging of RIL's balance sheet. In addition, the restructuring of RJIL in October 2019 under Jio Platforms Limited would offload sizeable debt from the books of RJIL (which in turn would be moved to the standalone books of RIL) thereby making RIL's digital business more attractive to investors. The potential monetization of the digital business would also allow RIL to pare down its debt levels.

The ratings further take into account the established presence of RIL in the crude oil refining segment, its leadership position in the domestic petrochemicals industry with presence across several product segments and its integrated operations across exploration and production (E&P), refining and petrochemical businesses, providing diversity to the cash flow generation. The company operates one of the most complex refineries globally which improves its flexibility in terms of crude sourcing resulting in relatively high Gross Refining Margins (GRMs). The company's digital services venture, where it has made sizeable investments, has been gaining subscribers at a healthy pace since inception and has achieved a subscriber base of 370 million as on December 31, 2019. High consumption of voice and data services by the company's customer base and the gradual ramp up in its tariff levels have supported the ARPUs from the business².

ICRA, however, factors in the sensitivity of the company's profits and cash generation to refining and petrochemical margin cycle, and risks associated with the E&P business such as geological risk, lack of diversity in production blocks and moderate reserve replacement track record. Further, ICRA notes that the profitability from the E&P business continues to remain weak owing to the decline in production levels from the domestic fields, especially the KG-D6 field, as well as the US shale operations. RIL has announced significant capex plans, along with its partner BP Plc, in the KG-D6 basin over the medium term which would expose it to exploration risks. Further, the company's ability to maintain healthy ARPUs in its telecom venture, given the significant competitive pressures in the industry, while also exploring newer revenue streams would be critical to achieve reasonable returns on the sizeable investments that have been made. However, risk from competitive pressure is limited as of now given the weak financial position of the key players in the domestic telecom sector. RIL's credit profile could also be influenced by any large acquisitions or new investments in its energy/consumer businesses.

Key rating drivers

Credit strengths

Established presence in crude oil refining segment; high complexity along with large scale of refinery operations provide crude sourcing competitiveness and product placement flexibility - RIL is an established player in the oil & gas sector, with two coastal refineries having a combined refining capacity of 1.24 million barrels per day (mbpd), and also the largest refining complex at a single location globally. Crude oil requirements of RIL are largely met through imports and the sheer size of the operations enables RIL to procure crude oil through Very Large Crude Carriers (VLCC) which results in competitive oceanic freight. Further, the company has product placement flexibility due to its ability to manufacture over 20 grades of petrol and diesel and proximity to the shore. Overall, RIL has a significant competitive edge over other global and domestic refineries due to its large scale of operations with capability to process wide varieties of crude, including some of the heaviest grades of crude as well as flexibility to manufacture products of high standards. The company's refineries have posted healthy GRM levels owing to their complexity though the same have been relatively lower in 9M FY2020 given weakness in cracks for light and middle distillates. The company has also completed its petcoke gasification project which would reduce the company's reliance on costlier LNG (liquefied natural gas) and replace it with in-house produced petcoke thereby enhancing the GRM of the company. However, the magnitude of savings would depend upon the differential between the LNG and petcoke prices.

Leadership position in the domestic petrochemicals industry with presence across all the product segments - In terms of the petrochemicals business, RIL continues to be amongst the top ten producers globally and commands a sizeable market share in the domestic polymer and polyester market. RIL had both naphtha as well as gas-based crackers earlier and now has also modified crackers to use ethane. This has significantly improved its feedstock flexibility and ability to respond to changing market conditions. In January 2018, RIL commissioned the world's largest refinery off-gas cracker complex of 1.5 million MTPA capacity along with downstream plants and utilities which provides significant integration benefits as the complex will utilise off-gases from RIL's refineries as feedstock thereby providing a cost advantage. The commissioning of the downstream units has significantly added to the strength of RIL in the petrochemicals business, as its turnover and profits (before interest and tax) from this segment witnessed 37% and 52% YoY increase, respectively, in FY2019. The contribution of profits (i.e. PBIT) from the petrochemicals business increased to 49% of RIL's overall profits in FY2019 from 40% in FY2018. The revenue and PBIT from the segment have witnessed a 13% YoY and 12% YoY decline, respectively in 9M FY2020 due to a decline in realisation across product categories. Nonetheless, RIL's cost competitiveness in its petrochemicals business, derived from its scale, access to superior process technology, development of specialty products and high level of integration enables it to withstand the commodity risks associated with the business.

Substantial in-roads achieved in the telecom business - RIL's digital services subsidiary, RJIL (rated [ICRA]AAA (Stable)), has witnessed healthy addition to its user base since launching its services in September 2016. As on December 31, 2019, the user base had expanded to 370 million subscribers, which reflects healthy acceptability of the company's services in the market, even though there has been an uptick in its average pricing. RJIL's total spectrum footprint stands at 1,108 MHz (uplink + downlink) with an average life of over 15 years, providing significant network capacity and extensive coverage.

Strong coverage indicators and low working capital intensity - As on September 30, 2019, RIL's total consolidated debt stood at Rs. 291,982 crore and its financial leverage (Gross Debt/OPDITA) was at 3.4 times, excluding capital creditors and deferred liabilities. RIL's borrowings have been on an increasing trend owing to the large-scale capex undertaken by the company for its petrochemicals and telecom businesses. The company's debt coverage indicators also remain comfortable with interest coverage of 4.1 times in H1 FY2020 and NCA/Gross Debt of ~20% in H1 FY2020. RIL's working capital requirement, as reflected by the ratio of its net working capital (NWC) to operating income (OI), continues to remain negative, given its large creditor funding. While RIL will continue to incur capex, especially in the E&P and digital businesses, the timeliness of execution of its deleveraging plans will remain a key rating sensitivity.

Exceptionally high financial flexibility - RIL reported healthy revenue growth of 45% YoY in FY2019, driven by the commissioning of new capacities and the increase in prices of refining and petrochemical products. The operating profits increased by 31% YoY in FY2019 driven by the increase in scale and healthy polyester / polymer margins, though partially offset by weak performance of the E&P business. While the revenue and operating profits growth moderated at 7% YoY and 4% YoY in 9M FY2020 due to headwinds in the refining and petrochemicals business environment, the company's debt coverage metrics remain comfortable. There is significantly high financial flexibility arising from its large liquid investments, access to treasury shares, and good-standing among the financial institutions. Besides, RIL has a proven track record in raising funds from the international/domestic bond markets with long tenures and low cost of debt.

Credit challenges

Risks associated with the E&P businesses - RIL remains exposed to the risks related to reducing production from its fields in the E&P business, especially its largest asset, the KG-D6 block. Gas volumes from KG-D6 have been declining, reaching a low of 1.5 mmscmd in Q3 FY2020 (as compared to the peak level of 69.4 mmscmd in March 2010) and have completely stopped as of now. The gas prices have also been on a downward trend in the recent quarters following the decline in international crude prices. The company's profits from its US shale gas business also remain subdued owing to decline in production volumes (though there has been a recovery in the last two quarters) and a low-price environment. Further, RIL's sizeable investment plans in the KG-D6 basin would expose it to exploration risks.

Challenges associated with generation of optimal returns from the large investments in the telecom sector - RJIL has invested heavily (in excess of Rs. 2 lakh crore) for setting up its pan-India, 4G long-term evolution (LTE) network. It may face challenges to achieve optimal returns from its investments in the medium term owing to the consolidation seen in the telecom industry and the high competitive intensity, though it would be supported by the healthy addition to its subscriber base. Further, risk from competitive pressure is limited as of now given the weak financial position of the key players in the domestic telecom sector.

Liquidity Position: Superior

RIL enjoys exceptionally strong liquidity on account of its increasing profits and negative working capital cycle which results in healthy retained cash flows. The company has maintained sizeable liquid investments (Rs. 153,719 crore as on December 31, 2019) and has access to unutilized bank lines, which further strengthen its liquidity profile. Besides, the company has proven track record in raising funds from international/domestic bond markets with long tenures and low cost of debt. Thus, despite large capex and debt repayment obligations in the near term, its liquidity position should remain superior.

Rating Sensitivities

Positive triggers – NA

Negative triggers – a) Significantly lower-than-expected returns from the recently commissioned projects which would weaken the debt coverage metrics or b) significant delays in execution of deleveraging plans

Consolidation / Standalone	For arriving at the ratings, ICRA has combined the business and financial risk profiles of RIL with its subsidiaries, RJIL and Reliance Retail Ltd. as these companies are an integral part of RIL's operations. Also, ICRA has also fully consolidated RIL's group companies - Reliance Industries Holding Private Limited, Jamnagar Utilities and Power Private Limited, Sikka Ports and Terminals Limited and East West Pipeline Limited, since they have a high degree of operational integration with RIL and are thus of significant strategic importance to the company. As on March 31, 2019, the company had 321 subsidiaries and 147 associates and JVs, that are enlisted in Annexure-2.

About the company

Reliance Industries Limited (RIL) is India's largest private sector enterprise. Starting with textiles in the late seventies, the company has pursued a strategy of backward vertical integration - in polyester, fibre intermediates, plastics, other petrochemicals, petroleum refining and oil and gas exploration and production - thereby making it a highly integrated player with its presence across the energy value chain. RIL enjoys global leadership in most of its businesses, being the largest polyester yarn and fibre producer in the world and among the top five to ten producers of major petrochemical products in the world. Through its subsidiary companies, RIL is also involved in diversified businesses spanning retail, oil marketing and digital services.
